Night Garden Carrie Mullins
Night Garden describes the journey of seventeen-year-old Marie Massey from youthful innocence to dark levels of human experience. Alienated from her affluent parents in a small Kentucky college town, Marie is drawn into an exotic, ultimately life-threatening world. The dramatic story unfolds in a sequence of vivid scenes, each of which is its own immediate story, carried by the author's taut, measured prose.

When tragedy strikes her family, Marie runs away and settles in with a wild, entrepreneurial and criminal family in a neighboring county, a world away from her safe and privileged upbringing. She substitutes the Owens family for her own, until their criminal ventures threaten her own life.

In Night Garden, even the minor characters are compelling. Marie's brother Shane is a high-school senior engaged in a sexual affair with the school's twenty-four-year old journalism teacher, Ms. Anglin. It is through Ms. Anglin that Shane and Marie are first drawn into the orbit of the extended and tightly connected Owens family.

Marie's first encounter with the handsome, charismatic, thirty-year-old Bobo Owens sets in motion the central story of the novel. Marie knows it is a significant encounter, but is too young and naïve to know the danger it has placed her in. The reader knows her plight, however, and is soon filled with concerned suspense as well as admiration for the author's story making skills.
