Who Is "Do Da"? Observations of a Hippie, Biker, Harmonica Guy Gone Philanthropist John Eugene Lebert Jr.
The chapters in this book cover some of the author's pet subjects. It is the author's goal to have readers become more aware of our natural, social and political surroundings. Subjects are covered in this book that teachers are not allowed to teach in school. Other subjects or thoughts are original and unclassified. A few of the subjects that are covered in the book can be touched on as follows. Vaccines for profit are are as big of a threat to the world as nuclear war. Just as nuclear energy is capable of being useful, vaccines of the past have been useful. However, the latest track records of both nuclear energy and vaccines are discouraging. I am quite convinced that the introduction of SV40 and AIDS into humans can be tracked down to labs that were using monkey kidneys in the production of polio and hepatitis vaccines. In chapter 5 of my book (Influenza And Tips on How To Avoid Death) I include documentation that I find to make since in backing up these claims if you wish to learn more. Another example is, Our leaders (democrat and republican) have stock in American companies. Through the years our leaders have been voting on lower tariffs. This encourages American companies to export their factories to other countries where they acquire cheap labor, real estate, and taxes along with lax labor and pollution restrictions usually. When the product comes back to the US and faces the smallest tariffs in history the profits are very appealing to stock holders who include most of our leaders and the companies who finance their campaigns. I have dedicated a chapter in my book on where the jobs went and I back up my claims with documentation. Another example, I do not believe that the common cold is caused by a virus. I believe that the prevalence of a virus is the result of the condition. An explanation of my theory can be found in the my book Who Is “Do Da”? Observations of a Hippie, Biker, Harmonica Guy Gone Philanthropist by John Lebert (Chapter 2). Examples, From health to game management or the war on drugs, the information in this book will tweak you. From religions to trouble with Iran and some history that relates to the present state of affairs in all of these subjects and more, you will find it in this book.
