Managing Complex Litigation: A Guide to MAP (Manage, Analyze, and Present) A Complex IP Case
David Dolkas

In Managing Complex Litigation: A Guide to MAP (Manage, Analyze, and Present) A Complex IP Case (Second Edition), David (Dave) Dolkas, a partner at McDermott, Will & Emery in Silicon Valley, sets forth the methodologies, processes, and protocols that he has developed over 30 years as a litigator, including 15 years as a trial attorney on complex IP and patent infringement cases. The book will be invaluable to any litigator transitioning from a tasked or project-based role on complex cases to leading either a segment (or "project") or the entire complex case (a "program"). Dolkas instructs readers on how best to Manage, Analyze, and ultimately Present (or "MAP") the "proof points" of a complex case to a judge or jury in a presentation that will be compelling, persuasive, and highly believable.

The fully updated Second Edition provides

- New techniques & strategies for more effective case planning, retaining focus on key elements of the case and not getting sidetracked with non-productive activities.
- Step-by-step practical guidance on developing and managing a winning trial team.
- Expanded coverage on how to prepare and present case-winning visuals for trial.
- Expanded coverage on how to prepare and present a complex case in a way that is easily understood by judges and jurors.
